

Remembering the good old days in Seneca

SENECA — Seneca School held its annual Back to School Night for parents the evening of Sept. 9.

Entertainment was provided by the students, with each class presenting a treasured memory of Seneca School days long ago.

The K-2 class sang sledding songs to recall the days when the teachers took students sledding at Starr Ridge.

The third- and fourth-grade class sang a baseball medley to remember the Seneca Loggers, the Hines Lumber Company team and happy days of baseball at school.

The fifth- and sixth-grade class re-created the famous Seneca Rope Jumpers, who once performed their jump rope routines in Washington, D.C.

In the format of an old-time radio show, the junior high class presented a hunting poem in remembrance of the old Deer Day holiday from school on the first day of hunting season.

After the student performances, parents went to the classrooms to visit with their children's teachers.

Contributed photo

Joe Smith (left) and Cody Crompton jump as Andrea Officer (right) and Linda Starbuck, a former Seneca Rope Jumper, turn the rope during the fifth- and sixth-grade routine.