

Learning made fun

SENECA — Seneca School held its first summer reading program in July at the school library.

This group of students met for one hour each Tuesday to read, talk about books and to listen to volunteer JoAnne Cordis read from five books, including "Five Chinese Brothers."

The program was coordinated through the Grant County Library, and its theme was "Exploring new trails at your library."

"I liked it ("Five Chinese Brothers" book). I remember having it read to me when I was little. It's just a cool book," said Kaitlyn Harvey, a fifth-grader at Seneca School pictured in the back row in the library photo.

"I read a book with a bunch of stories in it and my cousins gave me a bunch of books, so I've read those," said Kaitlyn. "I really like to read."
